Agenda

- About CIP and PCN
- Application Process
- ONIX Data in the CIP Workflow
- CIP E-books
- ECIP Cataloging Partnership Program
- Q & A

CIP Overview

- Mission: To serve the nation's libraries by cataloging books in advance of publication
- Began in 1971
- Publisher submitted paper applications with attached galleys
- LC created bibliographic record for each publication and sent CIP data to publisher via snail mail
- Publisher printed CIP data on the copyright page
- Publisher sent a copy of the book to LC
- LC distributes CIP records to bibliographic utilities and book vendors

CIP vs. ECIP

- Same mission
- Began in 1999
- Publisher submits web applications with attached electronic galleys
- LC creates bibliographic record for each publication and sends CIP data to publisher via email
- Publisher prints CIP data on the copyright page
- Publisher sends a copy of the book to LC
- LC distributes CIP records to bibliographic utilities and book vendors

PCN Program

- Preassigned Control Number
- Library of Congress control number assigned at pre-publication stage
- Publisher prints the control number in the book
  - Library of Congress Control Number: 2015954519
- Brief bibliographic record created in the LC catalog but not distributed
- PCN links the book to any record created by LC, other libraries, bibliographic utilities, or book vendors
- If book is selected for LC collections, the bib record is completed.

CIP Program Structure

- CIP and Dewey Program Manager
  - Administrative and programmatic management responsibilities
  - Dewey Program with four classifiers and the OCLC Dewey Editorial Team
- CIP Program Specialists (3)
  - Database management
  - CIP E-books Project management
  - ECIP Cataloging Partnership Program recruitment
- CIP Publisher Liaison Team
  - Supervisory library technician + 8 staff
  - Primary contact for publishers
  - Process CIP and PCN applications and email completed CIP data and LCCNs
  - Process CIP e-books
- CIP Technical Team
  - Supervisory library technician + 4 staff
  - Check in and process CIP and PCN books
  - Check in and process CIP e-books

FY16 final statistics

- 43,969 ECIP and CIP print galleys processed
- 5,423 ECIP participating publishers
- 54,090 EPCN's processed
- 68,710 EPCN participating publishers
- 96,009 Total monographs received (print and e-books)
- Total value of monographs received: approx. $9.3 million

Consolidated Traffic Manager

- Why a new system?
  - Current ECIP Traffic Manager built in 1999
  - Older technology, not up to IT security specs
  - ISSN needed an online application database
- What's in the new system?
  - CIP, PCN, ISSN in separate modules
  - APEX software—meets IT security needs
  - Better tracking and management of CIPs
  - Still works with Voyager and OCLC Connexion
- Where are we?
  - Testing new iterations
  - Preparing documentation
  - Training planned for late November 2016
  - Implementation planned for early January 2017

ONIX DATA
IN THE CIP WORKFLOW

What is ONIX?

ONIX for Books is an XML format for sharing bibliographic data pertaining to both traditional books and eBooks. It is the oldest of the three ONIX standards, and is widely implemented in the book trade in North America, Europe and increasingly in the Asia-Pacific region. It allows book and ebook publishers to create and manage a corpus of rich metadata about their products, and to exchange it with their customers (distributors and retailers) in a coherent, unambiguous, and largely automated manner.

Definition from Wikipedia

LC uses ONIX for Books 2.1

Identification and Use of ONIX data at LC

- Publishers send ONIX feeds to a CIP Program Specialist several times a week
- ONIX records matched against ECIP galleys via ISBN when the ONIX to MARC converter is invoked for prepublication cataloging
- ONIX data are used to enrich records in the LC Voyager catalog by adding TOCs and summaries through an LC-created program

What does ONIX look like?

ONIX to MARC Converter Cataloging Process

- The following fields are brought in via ONIX:
  100, 245, 250, 264b, 264c, 490, 520, 505, 655 (BISAC), 700
- Data are automatically preselected
- Compare mode to note discrepancies
- More like proof-reading
- Data must be in Voyager before errors can be corrected
- Discrepancies between galley and ONIX
- Capitalization issues
- Adding fields and other data/text
- Cataloger should look at galley to double check
- Cataloger must be vigilant to prevent errors

Benefits from use of ONIX data

- Faster and more ergonomic
- Less likelihood of errors on part of catalogers
- More enriched data
  - TOCs
  - Summaries
  - BISAC headings
- Publisher data directly serves library community

Terms and Conditions

The Library of Congress Cataloging in Publication (CIP) Program is able to provide CIP data for books that are published simultaneously in both electronic and print form. As a CIP Publisher that publishes simultaneously in both formats, you are eligible for the E-books program. If you wish to receive CIP metadata for your e-book, please review and accept the following:

I have already transmitted to the Library either the complete text or the core required materials of each print book for which I am requesting e-book CIP data, and I will include the complete and unaltered e-book CIP data in the published e-book.

I am also willing to give the Library a copy of the published e-book to be included in its collection and made available to Library staff and registered users through the Library's secure network.

Traffic manager/record creation

- Unique LCCN assigned to the e-book application
- Program within the Traffic Manager collects LCCNs and data elements
- Sent outside the Traffic Manager to the record creation program
- Record creation program accesses catalog record for print version of title
- Adds LCCN assigned by the Traffic Manager
- Adds data elements for e-book
  - Standard data elements, such as “1 online resource” in physical description field
  - Variable data fields, such as ISBNs for the e-book

Frequently Asked Questions

Print Subscribe Share/Save Give Feedback

This FAQ document is intended for use by the Library of Congress ECIP Cataloging Partnership Program members to help facilitate the ECIP cataloging workflow and to ensure the quality of catalog records.

Using Traffic Manager/TCEC:

- What is the process for creating ECIP records using Traffic Manager/TCEC?
- Where can partners find the information about which LC Section in the Traffic Manager they should send completed ECIP applications to for end stage processing?
- Whom should I contact if I have additional questions not covered in the FAQ?

Thank you!
