"You Don't Look Like a Librarian": Decoding Microaggressions in the Library Environment

Rachel A. McCaskill
Learning Technologies Librarian
Virginia Commonwealth University

Guidelines:

Listen for understanding

Speak Your Own Truth

Confidentiality

Honesty

Redefine Your Comfort Zone

Respect Others

- Understand microaggressions
- Increase our awareness of microaggressions in the library environment
- Practice addressing microaggressions

So... what exactly IS a microaggression?

Microaggressions in the Library Environment

Librarian suggestions and ideas being valued over staff/non-librarian suggestions

“You should be good at this.”

“You don’t look like a librarian.”

“She’s a piece of work, isn’t she?”

“You speak so well.”

Microaggressions in the Library Environment

“Don’t be shy. We all want to know what you think.”

“Oh, I don’t need a microphone.”

“We value diversity”: but an organization doesn’t carry out equal and fair recruitment practices

Being called on to offer the “librarian of color perspective”

Microaggressions in the Library Environment

Continuing to mispronounce the names of coworkers or patrons after being corrected, or not bothering to pronounce names correctly in the first place

Making assumptions about students and their backgrounds

Talking over coworkers in meetings, students in classes

- Validate the experiences of others

- Acknowledge and accept discomfort, it is a part of the process

- Ask clarifying questions

- Get “curious”
